Personal Shipping Delivers Big Benefits

Enhance Your Benefits Program

Providing personal shipping as a benefit can attract and retain valued employees and talent. Personal shipping is provided with little to no cost or maintenance involved; and helps organizations reduce their own internal shipping costs. Personal shipping keeps people safe, secure, and productive. Employees may remain at their workstations, engaged with their core functions job because personal shipping can be accessed at their own desktops, on the road or from home.

A No Cost, No Hassle Employee Benefit to Attract and Retain Employee Talent

Personal shipping provides new ways to keep employees productive through the weekdays, and can be utilized from the comfort of their homes should they need to make a personal shipment over the weekend. Anything that can provide additional benefits over another opportunity is an advantage when competing for employees and retaining employees overall.

Many organizations let their employees ship on company accounts, allowing their employees to process shipments and be billed later. However, this creates more work for the corporate accountants who would need to process the payments and this method does not guarantee that any post shipment adjustments would be charged to the employee. Some companies build their own custom shipping solutions for their employees, which can be expensive to create and maintain. Some organizations even turn a blind eye to "rogue shipping," where an employee sends a personal package using the company account without the approval or knowledge of the company. In a rogue shipping situation the company would take on the total shipping cost.

Whether companies realize it or not they may already be supporting the idea of personal shipping through their current policies and practices as a way to offer the benefit to their employees. Transtream's Personal Shipping app offers a solution for providing the same benefits with lower costs to the company, little maintenance and less negative affects to budgets and bottom lines.

Employees Can Ship From Their Desk Using a Personal Credit Card with an Easily Accessible Enterprise Shipping Tool

Keep Employees Safe, Secure and Productive

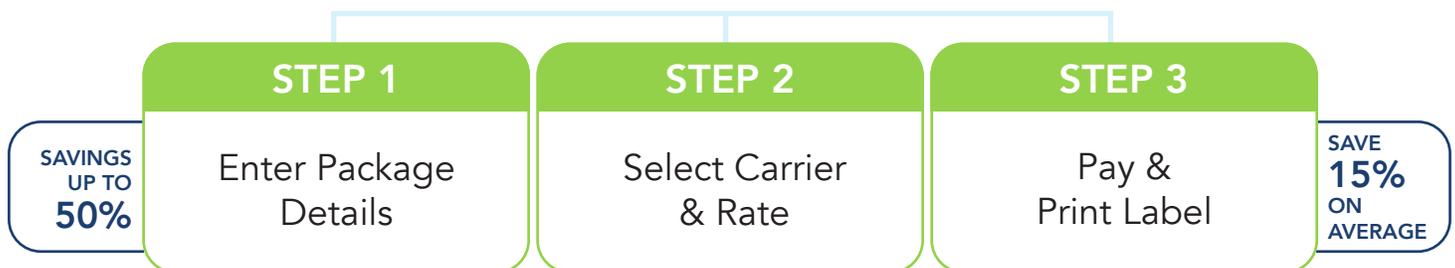

Transtream's Personal Shipping app eliminates the need for employees to drive to a shipping center and wait in long lines at the counter. From the convenience of their desk, an employee can select their carrier, pay for their service using their personal credit card and create and print their shipping label. Once the shipment is created employees are provided a link to locate carrier-specific drop points near them to make the drop off simple.

This keeps employees at their desks and involved in their work while also allowing them to accomplish personal tasks at a discounted rate.

Technology as a Productivity Enabler, Not a Distraction

With benefits like personal shipping employees experience reduced pressure on their complicated and demanding lives. Concern for an employee's overall well-being, both in and out of the office, is a valuable way to prove that a company cares for its employees.
